Have you tried.....?

Have you tried to find a letter, baked in a roll?

Have you camped in a tent on a raft?

Have you tried, together with others, to prepare a project that will make others happy and help them?

If your answer is yes, then surely you have been or still are a Scout.

If your answer is no, you surely still can become one.

If you want to experience the magic in Scouting, you have to join the movement. You will experience that you will be challenged in all ways while you'll get a unique leader-education.

The Scout- and Guide-Movement in the World has a long tradition in its 105 years of history and it is still vivid and still on its way to develop children and youngsters to be competent and useful citizens who have developed their leadership-skills to their highest potential in a democratic spirit. Those who have been or still are Scouts know, what we are talking about, and those who have not been Scouts can recognize the Scouts in the way they handle the challenges they meet in their lives.

Because of the political history the Scout Movement in Eastern Europe unfortunately was forbidden after the end of the Second World War. Due to this the Scout Movement has not had the opportunity to develop children and young people and give them the same opportunities as they have in West Europe.

After the fall of the wall the Scout Movement again started in the Eastern European countries, but only very weak. First of all because of the lack of money, but also because of public suspicion towards youth work in uniform

Friends of Scouts in Europe (FOSE) is an organization under the European Scout Foundation that wants to support first of all the Scout Associations of the Eastern European countries.

It is of great existential importance for these associations that we in FOSE support all their actions because it will help the young people to develop their abilities and help them to become whole persons who have a democratic way of thinking.

When young people of the world meet each others in order to have Scout-activities together at a big camp they will make lasting friendships with each others that will continue even if they have grown up. So the young people will be able to help to build up a peaceful coexistence between the different countries in Europe and in the world.

We would be very grateful for just your membership in Friends of Scouts in Europe.

An annual membership costs 150 €, a lifelong membership costs 2000 €

In Germany it is possible to get a donation receipt. Talk with us about the opportunities. Come to Tydal at the 23rd July 2015 and hear more about FOSE.

It helps to help!
